FLOYD SMITH'S LIFE ENDED ON DEATH CHAIR

Maintained Innocence to Last; Received Three Contacts.

BETRAYED NO EMOTION

Floyd Smith, maintaining to the very end that he was innocent, on Monday morning paid the penalty for murder when his life was ended in the electric chair at Rockview. He was placed in the chair at 7:08 and pronounced dead at 7:17 after 3 contacts of 2,000 volts with amperage at 12, 4 and 3 respectively. The amperage as decreased represents decrease in strength of current with voltage remaining the same. The body was claimed for burial and sent to New Albany, Pa.

Smith was about 29 years old. It is known that his wife, grandfather and several brothers survive. We did not learn of any other relatives. It is said officially, that there was nothing unusual in the manner in which Smith went to the chair. He never swerved from the story he always told of how the child met its death. It was unofficially reported that Smith was very optimistic and even this time did not expect to be electrocuted, but indicated he expected something would turn up to prevent his life being taken. "Everything will be all right," it is alleged he said to some who visited him in his cell.

Perhaps no man ever sentenced to the electric chair was given so much publicity, not only in the county weekly papers, but in daily papers throughout the country, as Smith. From the time David Kauffman, a Towanda attorney, read the letter which Smith had left with the city editor of the Towanda Morning Review, not to be opened until after his electrocution, first set for a Monday morning nearly 2 years ago, there has been one respite after another granted and during that entire interval the victim remained a prisoner in one of the strong and guarded cells at the Rockview deathhouse. The one sentence in that letter which Mr. Kauffman could not get from his mind was, "Before my Maker, I declare I am innocent of murder." In spite of this declaration, Smith finally paid the penalty for murder.

Just a few hours before he went to the electric chair, Smith wrote a letter to Rev. T. W. Young, former chaplain at Rockview, reiterating his innocence. This letter follows:

March 4th, 1923

Rev. T. W. Young, Bellefonte, Pa.

My Dear Brother, Mr. Young:—I am so sorry this will be my last letter I will ever write to you, but some day we will meet in that beautiful home God has prepared for us all that trust in Him. I am going to meet my God with a clear conscience, and I am sure I will soon meet with my dear mother and wife (his first wife) and little baby girl, that are calling to me where all the good people go that trust and believe in our Lord Jesus Christ. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for all you have done to save an innocent man of intent murder from the electric chair. I am also sending you a little token to remember me by. Its a picture of myself and dear wife I will be with soon. Goodbye, till we meet again in Heaven.

FLOYD SMITH.

P. S.—No, I never made any threat against my wife Ruth (his second wife) since I knew her. I have no cause to.

Going over some of the details of the case, it will be noted that the body of a child 3 weeks old had been found, in April, 1920, in the water under a small culvert, in South Waverly. Smith first declared he had attempted to abandon the child at a farm house. A dog chased him away, he said, and as he ran he fell in the muddy road on the infant crushing out its life. Then to escape accusations of murder he had placed the child in the stream. Later he signed a statement that he had put the child, while alive, in the water and placed a stone on its body.

He was not the father of the child. It was born to his wife about 3 months after their marriage and the alleged abandonment was attempted at her instance. A pair who lived in an adjoining apartment testified the man had made threats against the infant. The farmer, at whose house he attempted to abandon the child, swore his dog was not out of the house that night. The clothes he had carried in a bundle with the child were produced at the trial, not stained and mud spattered, but fresh and clean.

During the trial a lawyer became so intoxicated that court had to take a recess until the man fighting for his life, could get on his feet. He was found guilty and sentenced to death in a court which a few months before had freed a woman who shot and killed a defenceless man.

But Kauffman secured affidavits that the confession which Smith repudiated before the trial was involuntary and incomplete. A member of the Sayre police force swore he saw officers wash the clothes which were produced clean and fresh at the trial. The Bradford County court, in refusing a new trial, had said the clean clothes discredited the alleged fall in the muddy road. The man and wife whose testimony furnished the motive for the crime, retracted most of their statements. It has been discovered neither bears a good reputation for truth and veracity and the man served several terms in Auburn State prison.

While the owner of the farm where Smith says he tried to abandon the baby swears his dog was in the house, the assistant postmaster at Athens, a small town nearby, made affidavit he was visiting at the house next door that night and he heard the dog belonging to his host barking and growling at the hour Smith specifies. Statements were secured from several jurors that they paid little attention to the case after they saw how drunk Smith's chief counsel was. All this was presented to the Board of Pardons, and the Supreme Court, but the conviction held.

LOCOMOTIVE DAMAGED

All three passenger trains—Lock Haven, Tyrone and Lewisburg—reached the Pennsy station at Bellefonte about the same time on Saturday morning, just a few minutes before 10 o'clock, and the locomotive on the Lewisburg was damaged considerably when the wheels left the rails near the trestle over Spring creek.

The Tyrone train was standing west of the station on the main track. The train to Lock Haven was pulling in on the siding by the Lauderbach—Zerby wholesale grocery and the Lewisburg was coming in over the trestle. The cars were still on the trestle and the tender remained on the tracks. But the engine had barely passed the banks of the creek, when the pony wheels and big drive wheels got onto the ties. The track was torn up for a distance of 20 to 30 feet.

It was necessary for the passengers to get off the cars on the trestle and walk to the station. All baggage, express and mail was carried piece by piece to the waiting trains for Tyrone and Lock Haven. The track was completely blocked for the day. The Lock Haven work train was called and got the engine back onto the rails. It was then taken to the shops in Sunbury for repairs. The train was operated by a Sunbury crew in charge of Conductor Reynolds and Engineer McCollum.

Had Banquet at Bush House.

Employes of the Keystone Power Corporation in a nice get-together meeting enjoyed a splendid chicken banquet at the Bush House on last Thursday evening. Earl C. Musser, division manager, at Bellefonte, was toastmaster. He called on the only two visitors from out-of-town—Messrs. H. C. Thuerk and H. R. Smith, of Ridgway; also, on Charles Kellerman, Rash Bumgardner and R. H. Lockard, of the local force. Their responses were timely and fell on appreciative ears. Twenty-two guests were present. It was such a successful affair that Manager Musser said, "We will make it a regular event."

Car Damaged.

The big Lincoln touring car owned and driven by Chas. R. Beatty was slightly damaged on last Friday evening when it got beyond control on the state highway east of Bellefonte and ran into the embankment, the paint being marred to some extent. Mr. Beatty was alone and had just passed a car being driven in the opposite direction. He passed at a curve in the highway and the car went into the ditch, causing it to get beyond control on account of the snow and ice.

The case to have been heard before Justice Kline Woodring, of Bellefonte, last Thursday, in which Game Protector Mosier charges John Burkholder, of Potters Mills, with having harbored a dog without a license and for the dog killing a deer out of season, was continued until March 15.

Hospital Drive Postponed.

The proposed drive for funds for the Bellefonte hospital has been postponed until after action on the appropriation has been taken by the Legislature. This action was taken at a meeting of the board of managers of the Bellefonte hospital held on last Friday evening.

ARGUED BANK CASE

Attorneys Attend Hearing in U. S. Court of Appeals in Philadelphia

Argument in the Centre County Bank matter was heard yesterday before the United States Court of Appeals, in Philadelphia. The point involved is whether Geo. R. Meek shall file a schedule of his assets or be allowed a jury trial to determine that he was or was not a partner of the bank when it failed.

Attorney N. B. Spangler, counsel for the depositors' committee, and Attorney S. D. Gettig, representing the bank, appeared for one side, while former Judge Orvis and Attorney M. C. Rhone, the latter of Williamsport, represented Mr. Meek. Paper books were filed by opposing sides. The court reserved decision, which procedure is customary in such cases. It is expected, however, that an early decision will be handed down.

It is not believed that the decision of the higher court will necessarily delay activity in proceedings to wind up the affairs of the bank Should the decision allow Mr. Meek the privilege of a jury trial the depositors committee will ask Judge Witmer, in the district federal court, to formally declare the Centre County Bank bankrupt and appoint a trustee to make distribution of assets. Meanwhile any other legal proceedings may be handled without delay to the proving of claims and distribution of the bank's funds.

The bank having failed in May, 1922, it is held by depositors that the statute of limitations will not expire until May of the present year in relation to any additional proceedings that are contemplated.

Just what depositors will eventually recover from the defunct bank is as uncertain today as when the institution closed its doors. There seems to be a prevailing belief that the final distribution will return to depositors upward of seventy-five cents on the dollar. As has been stated before, this will be largely contingent on what certain securities owned by the bank bring if put up at public sale. Some of these securities are unlisted, that is they are not quoted on the stock market, and consequently have a more or less uncertain value.

Modern Woodmen Meeting.

The Modern Woodmen of America, claimed by its members to be the strongest fraternal insurance society in the world, which has gained a strong foothold in Bellefonte, will hold an open meeting in their hall in the Crider Stone building on High St., Wednesday, March 14, at 8 o'clock, P. M. The purpose is to advertise to laymen their plan of handling the protection of dear ones and all men are invited, whether Woodmen or not. The Mack-Murray Co., high-class vaudeville artists, have been engaged to furnish a big free program, consisting of up-to date singing, talking and dancing acts, also farce comedy, insuring an evening of unalloyed amusement. The Woodmen are also featuring a big free banquet after the show. If you have a friend who is a Woodman be sure and get an invitation and enjoy this big free evening of happiness.

Malcolm Bryan and Miss Hazel Aikey, both of Bellefonte, were married by Rev. M. C. Piper, of Milesburg, on Monday morning. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Bryan, who served a dinner at their home on Sunday in honor of the young couple. Those attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gingher and two children, of Tyrone; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Aikey and son Wayne, Linn Stere, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith and little daughter. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Aikey. They have best wishes of The Republican and a host of friends.

Great interest is being manifested in the get-together dinner and meeting for men to be held in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening, March 13. Dinner will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary at 6:45, followed by a special program of fun and fellowship that will be interesting to all. There will be music and a few short speeches, and the chief address of the evening will be delivered by Dr. A. B. VanOrmer, of Huntingdon, on "A Challenge to Manly Men."

LOCK HAVEN FLOODED

Bellefonte Firemen Among Those to Give Aid.

As the ice moved out of the Susquehanna river on Sunday, jams below the city of Lock Haven caused the water to be backed up and the lower districts were covered with water, which at its height was several feet in depth and effectually stopped traffic as well as flooding cellars in homes, hotels and business places. By Monday morning the water was receding rapidly in the river and left the flooded sections in and about the city, excepting what remained in cellars or pools.

The Undine firemen with their steamer have been assisting in pumping water from the cellars. A state engineer was summoned to study conditions and report a method whereby the periodical floods could be avoided. He made a study of the river on Tuesday as far east of Lock Haven as Williamsport, especially at the piers of the seven or eight long bridges blamed by many for the ice-jams. He said, however, that his study did not reveal to him any method by which the floods could be avoided and that he did not think the bridge piers were the cause.

Lock Haven schools were closed on Monday but opened on Tuesday morning.

Health engineers from Harrisburg were summoned and went over the situation with local health officials, urging all persons to clean their premises thoroughly, take away all rubbish and mud, scour carpets and floors, whitewash cellar walls, and wash and give a good airing to all clothes that were wet by flood waters.

Last reports indicate that the city is quickly overcoming the annoyance and dangers brought by the flood and that, in a few weeks will return to normal again. The determination to avoid future floods, if possible, is manifest and, in spite of the discouraging report of the engineer from Harrisburg, the Councilmen are making plans to prevent future ice-jams and attendant flooding of the city.

The widely known, highly esteemed minister, became ill two weeks ago and was taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Reese, at Northumberland, where it was reported he had suffered a severe attack of grippe and did not feel like returning to his duties at Woolrich. Rev. Dr. Yocum has been in the ministry, it is said, for more than fifty years.

Good Prices at Public Sales.

A number of farm sales were held during the past week in various sections of the county, the public sale season being on in full swing this month. Prices generally are reported as comparing favorably with those of last spring, although somewhat higher for cows and horses. Pigs, shoats and hogs, are bringing good prices. Implements are selling high. As has been noted in several years past, the purebred stock is bringing the fancy prices.

MATTERS BEFORE COUNCIL

Important Business Disposed of at Monday Evening Session.

A number of important matters were brought to the attention of Council at the regular meeting on Monday evening.

In written communications, Clerk W. T. Kelly read a permit granted by the state to the Deitrick and Dunlap Cadillac company for installing a new gasoline tank at their garage on the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets, which was accepted.

A letter from Solicitor N. B. Spangler, stating his action and position on the question of caring for borough prisoners was read.

Reports from the street committee, water committee and fire and police committee were given. The latter reported receipt of a check of $170 from Burgess Walker for licenses, covering a period of three months.

A recommendation that the lockup be repaired was discussed. Ben Bradley, contractor, inspected the building, and reported it would cost about $75 to put a new roof on it and at least $30 to put in a new floor, both of which would be necessary to make it fit for use. The cost of keeping borough prisoners at the jail was then looked up and it was found to be $54.50 for the entire year of 1922. This was considered much less expensive and also much better than to make use of the lockup, so that Councilman Waite offered a motion as follows:

"That the chairman of the fire and police committee be directed to arrange that the sheriff take care of the borough prisoners as heretofore."

This motion was adopted.

The finance committee reported balances in the banks as follows:

Bellefonte Trust Co.	$9,730.46
First National,	5,753 48
Total	$15,483 94

They also reported notes to the amount of $34,630 for renewal and asked for orders for interest on same, which were granted.

Under special business, it was noted that Darius Waite and Thomas Hazel had represented Bellefonte at the convention in Harrisburg of the State Boroughs association. Mr. Waite was asked for a report and briefly told of the interesting and instructive sessions held.

The water committee asked permission to get bids for repairs at the water works building and for painting the structure, represented as being in urgent need of same. This was referred back to the water committee for report at the next meeting of Council.

Councilman J. M. Cunningham reported the steamer of the Logan Fire company out of repair and suggested that an effort be made to have it repaired and sold to some town glad to get it, at the same time turning it into some money for the borough. This was referred to the fire and police committee for report.

The fire and police committee reported that the Logan and Undine fire companies, each paid $5 per month to have the pumpers kept in good condition. They are thoroughly cleaned as often as three times a week, it was reported. The firemen want them kept in good shape but this is costly, a total for both companies for one year of $120, cuts deeply into their appropriations and feel it is a cost that rightly should be paid by the borough.

Mention was also made that the pumpers need some special care now, such as grinding of the valves, to keep them in good order and prevent damage to the costly apparatus through neglect. Mr. Emerick called attention to the upkeep of the equipment for the past year which his company did free of charge. On this score, some personal remarks were made which resulted in a heated tilt between Messrs. Emerick and Cunningham, until finally a motion was adopted as follows: "That the fire and police committee give the pumpers proper attention for necessary repairs."

The street committee recommended that the settlement proposed by James R. Hughes for the Spring street paving bill and Bishop street sewer from swimming pool, be accepted. The recommendation was adopted.

It was also agreed that Emerick busses could park at the north half of High street in front of the Court House instead of in front of the Heverly store.

Councilman Adolph Fauble suggested that it would be a good thing to have liability and collision insurance for the two pumpers. This was referred to the fire and police committee.

Borough Manager Seibert asked about the proposed sewer for the eight to ten families on East High street and a proposition was considered whereby each owner pay 25 cents per foot for the frontage of their property as part of the cost of sewer and also pay regular tap charge of $10, the matter to be presented to the owners for their approval by Mr. Seibert.

BOYD VONADA HAPPY AS SIGHT MAY BE RESTORED

Undergoes Painful Ordeal in Philadelphia Hospital.

STEEL TAKEN FROM EYE

Boyd Vonada, young automobile mechanic of Bellefonte, returned home on on Monday with hopes that his right eye which it was feared he would lose, will soon be functioning again. It was good news to his many friends and the story he tells of how the change came is remarkable.

It was about six weeks since his eye was seriously injured and his sight completely lost when a piece of steel pierced the eye-ball. Mr. Vonada says a Williamsport specialist took X Ray photos of the eye and reported the steel had entirely pierced the ball and lodged in a perilous position about one-fourth of an inch back of it. Not satisfied with the results, being almost frantic from the harrowing and continuous pain caused by the injury, Mr. Vonada, about two weeks ago, decided to go to Philadelphia on advice of friends. He is glad he did.

He became the patient of Dr. W. M. Sweet, noted eye specialist of the Jefferson Hospital. The specialist called a clinic of students. "Just you lie still, now, young man, and don't move," the doctor said. He did not give Boyd an anaesthetic—nothing to kill or stop pain, Vonada said:

"Then the students began to examine my eye and the doctor explained about the piece of steel in it, and so on. There is one thing I think I will never forget. 'I hope I don't hurt,' the doctor said.

'Then he got a magnet ready. By X-Ray photos he had taken the day before, he located the piece of steel, which was still in my eye, near the back of it. As he was getting the magnet ready, he said to the students, 'Now, there are two ways in which the piece can be taken from the eye. I can cut in from the side through the white of it and take it out that way. However, the lens has been cut and there are no blood veins in the lens as there are in the whites, so I will try to take it out the way it went in.

"The current was snapped into the magnet to a force to lift 90 tons, but it never budged the steel, which had by this time grown fast in the eye ball. As the doctor told me it would be necessary to take out the piece of steel if the eye was to be saved at all, that even this might not be successful, but was the only hope and that eventually the whole eye would have to be taken out if the steel was not removed, I did not offer any objections, but gripped my hands and set myself to bear the pain.

"We will have to try something else,' the doctor said, and he quickly jabbed 3 slits into my eye. Talk about hurt—I never had anything so painful. Then he put thread into 2 of the slits and had one of the others hold the slit apart. He turned on the current again and, like a flash and with fearful pain, the piece of steel moved half way out of the ball. Then it lodged again. He turned off the magnet, waited an instant, then turned it on again and the piece of steel fairly shot out of my eye. He then put 3 stitches in my eye and I was taken to my room.

"My eye certainly hurt then and I begged the nurse for something to stop the pain, but she put me off until night. Then she gave me some small white pills and in 15 minutes I was sleeping soundly. When I awoke next morning the pain was about gone and I felt like a new person. I still have the cataract to be removed and will go back later to have this done.

"Now, for the first time since my eye was hurt, I am able to distinguish between light and dark. I can barely see my hand when I move it in front of my eye. I believe it will get all right in due time."

The piece of steel removed resembled a shoe nail, about ¼ inch long. The price of the operation, which required about 15 minutes, was $100, but Mr. Vonada says he was glad to pay it as the relief from the pain alone was worth more.

Petroleum for Airplanes.

What appears to some as an epoch-making event in the development of airplane and automobile motive power is the recent successful trip near Copenhagen, Denmark, of an airplane using petroleum as engine fuel. It was observed by experts who witnessed the test that the plane flew just as well as with gasoline, that there was less vibration and no soot formed, nor was there any self-ignition in the engine, which ran 100 less revolutions than normally—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Isn't there a likelihood of some prejudices proving themselves to be nothing but snobbery?

It is sometimes diverting to observe the efforts of people who fear they are becoming monotonous.

A Bit Late.

One day on the golf course, says an English paper, Field Marshal Haig asked his caddie what service he had seen during the war.

"One of my brothers," the caddie replied, "was in the infantry, one in the artillery and one was in the engineers."

"But you?"

"Well, I didn't do anyfink," replied the caddie. "But I'm going to do my bit now. I'm going to carry your bloomin' clubs for nuffink!"

Not Always a Good Rule.

"You must keep your eye on the ball."

"Bah! I've made some of my best shots with my eyes shut."

Laughing at an incomprehensible joke deceives no one.

Find What CANADA has to offer YOU!

If your dream of success seems like a hopeless ambition, if you are discouraged trying to get ahead on high priced land, if your present location fails to give you opportunity, there is a new deal for you, a new chance in the fertile, virgin farms of Western Canada, where wheat produces 20 to 40 bushels to the acre, where the 1922 crop was biggest in history, where oats, barley and hay and fodder crops are the basis of a great dairy industry, and a man's work brings him success and prosperity.

Low Priced Land—the Last Great West

In Western Canada you still can buy virgin prairie land at $15 to $20 per acre, on long terms if desired, near to town, railroads, etc.—land such as has for many years produced the world's prize winning wheat, oats, barley, flax, rye, alfalfa. Canada had no "war time" land boom; prices are not inflated — you get in on the ground floor.

Taxes Favor the Farmer as Values Increase

The tax laws of Western Canada encourage the producing farmer. The tax on land is reduced when it is brought under cultivation—while on your buildings, machinery, improvements, personal property, automobile, there is no tax at all. A single crop is often worth more, acre for acre, than the cost of the land.

Rent Now—Buy Later Pay Out of Profits

Canada welcomes the industrious settler. What you have now isn't so important. If your capital is small, or you cannot sell your present holdings to advantage, rent a fertile Canadian farm and "try it out" for a season or two. Make a good living, increase your capital, and buy later. Farms may be rented from successful settlers on easy terms; in some cases with option of purchase.

Buy on Exceptional Terms—32 Years to Pay

For the benefit of those wishing to buy land a national non-profit sharing organization—the Canada Colonization Association—has been established with head office at Winnipeg, and United States office at St. Paul. This Association offers selected land convenient to railways—much of it at $15 to $20 per acre—on very small cash payment; no further payment until third year; balance extended over thirty years, but purchaser may pay up and obtain title at any time if desired. Interest six percent per annum on deferred payments.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

FISH BRING LEGION INCOME

Beaver Dam, Wis., Post Plans to Erect Community Building With Funds Obtained.

"Gold fish," was the contemptuous title bestowed upon embalmed salmon by John Doughboy during the World war. Many soldiers developed a lasting prejudice against anything moving in water because their army diet so often included tinned fish.

However, the finny tribe has staged an unusual comeback in one community. Members of the John E. Miller post of the American Legion, and likewise the good citizens of Beaver Dam, Wis., owe the possibility of a fine new community building to fish and to the practical imagination of the Legion members.

For a number of years, the Wisconsin conservation commission had awarded the concession of seining German and buffalo carp and other "rough fish" from Beaver Dam lake to professional fishermen, who annually gleaned many francs by selling their catch in the city markets.

C. R. Yauman.

Then the Legion post stepped in. Charles E. Yauman, post commander, and William Lawrence, vice commander of the Wisconsin department, organized the Legionnaires for the purpose of circulating a petition to obtain the fishing concession from the conservation commission, with the understanding that profits would be used by the Legion in the construction of a community building. More than 6,000 persons signed the petition and the commission granted the concession to the veterans.

The Legionnaires organized the effort in a business-like manner. Yauman took care of the formation of seining crews and Lawrence made arrangements with New York and Chicago markets as well as local and nearby merchants to sell the catch. The post has more than 350 members, and everyone took some part in the enterprise.

The post's report testifies to the success of the undertaking:

"We have sold up to the present time a little over 90 tons of buffalo carp, which has netted us more than $7,500, including our equipment, which is as fine as any fishing crew can have," the report states. "We have paid $2,000 to the state and to our crew members, who were local boys and for the most part Legion members, as high as $1,000 a week in salaries, and $1,000 to our local box factory.

W. H. Lawrence.

"We sold many tons of fish to local consumers at a much lower price than market quotations which pleased the home people very much. We sold a quantity of fish in 100-pound lots to families, to be salted, smoked and pickled for home use."

The Beaver Dam post had the united support of the conservation commission in its undertaking. Game wardens co-operated with all fishing crews and assisted materially in the success of the operation.

Recognized as the leading community organization in the town, the post has backed all worthy enterprises. Its large band is at the call of civic and patriotic organizations.

Won Legion Essay Prize.

Donald Lewis Campbell of Clinton, Ia., won first prize in his state in the American Legion's essay contest on the subject, "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" The young Iowan's essay has been forwarded to Legion national headquarters, where it will be judged in competition with other state winners for national honors by a board composed of John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; E. E. Moore, former national commissioner of education, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. The Legion gave Campbell a medal. If he wins the national contest, he will receive a scholarship of $750 in any college or university. Young Campbell won first prize in a national essay contest in 1920 over all other school children contestants on the subject, "What Are the Benefits of an Enlistment in the United States Army?"

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

The American Legion is attempting to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Edward Stanley Starr, who left his home at 611 West One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street, New York City, on the morning of November 6 and has not been heard from since.

Edward Starr.

Starr was a bugler in the One Hundred and Second engineers of the Twenty-seventh division during the World war. Strenuous days left him physically fit but subject to periods of melancholy disposition.

Starr is an electrician and was employed by the International Time Recording company, 11 East Thirty-seventh street, New York, at the time of his disappearance. He is twenty-three years old, about five feet, eleven inches tall; weight 160 pounds, blue eyes, light brown hair, fair complexion, scar on his left wrist.

A widowed mother has asked the American Legion to find William Davern whom she has not seen since November, 1920, when he left his home in St. Paul to work in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Later he was heard from in St. Louis and New Orleans. In April, 1921, he was sent to New Jersey and then apparently dropped off the face of the earth. He was affiliated with the Bridge Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' union. During the war he was a corporal in Battery B of the Seventy-seventh Field Artillery.

William Davern.

The American Legion is assisting Henry McKee of De Land, Ill., to locate his son, Harry T. McKee, who enlisted at Camp Grant, Ill., in September, 1919, and was discharged at San Francisco on November 28, 1922, after serving one year at Camp Grant and two years in Hawaii with the Eleventh F. A. He has dark brown eyes, black hair, a crooked right arm, and a scar just below the elbow; weight about 140 pounds. He will be twenty-one years of age on May 14, 1922.

Mrs. C. J. Traen of Taunton, Minn., would be very glad to hear from anyone who could give her any information regarding her brother, A. L. Houle, who enlisted on May 2, 1917, and was a member of company F, Fourteenth Infantry. He is five feet five inches tall; weight, 160 pounds; dark brown eyes and brown hair, inclined to be curly. Last heard from in December, 1921, and was at that time employed by J. P. Lang Co. at Corn Creek Branch, Belt, Mont.

Mrs. Florence Minney of McGregor, Ia., requests information concerning her son, Charles W. Minney, from whom she has not heard for the last two years. During the World war he served with the Thirty-fifth infantry, Company C, and when next heard from was in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. He is five feet eight inches in height, brown eyes, black hair.

Claude C. Du Lay, whose temporary address is Room 2116, Interior Department Building, Washington, D. C., is trying to locate his brother, Floyd C. Du Lay, who was discharged at Camp Custer, Michigan, on March 5, 1918, as a private, Company G, Three Hundred and Fortieth Infantry. On or about November 11, 1918, he left his home in Detroit and has not been heard from since. He is twenty-nine years of age; five feet eleven inches tall, with heavy dark brown hair and dark brown eyes. Weight approximately 155 pounds. He has served in both the navy and the army. His occupation has been soda-man, and he has worked in a theater. At one time he traveled with a show under the name of R. W. Harris, and is known to many by the name of Bob Harris. A reward of $25 is offered.

In the interest of a father and mother, the Matoaka Post, No. 86 of Matoaka, W. Va., is inquiring for the whereabouts of George D. Donley, who was discharged at Camp Dix, New Jersey, on December 21, 1918, and who has not been heard from since. Any information should be sent to Matoaka Post No. 86, or to Mrs. C. L. Donley, Glatto, Mercer County, West Virginia.

Mrs. Edna Van Fleet, 349 South River street, Aurora, Ill., has asked the American Legion to assist her in locating her husband, Arthur Van Fleet, formerly a member of the Fourth H. M. O. R. S. He was last heard from in Milwaukee, Wis.

Anyone having information relative to the whereabouts of Bergen W. Harmon, who escaped from the Neuro-psychiatric hospital at Mendota, Wis., about January 2, is requested to communicate with J. B. Harmon at 520 Seventh avenue East, Ashland, Wis. Bergen W. Harmon is twenty-six years old; about five feet six inches in height; weight about 140 pounds; has light complexion and light hair. He served with the Three Hundred and Eighteenth Engineers, Medical detachment.

Joseph Toahey, 448 Minerva street, Indianapolis, Ind., is trying to locate Private Alick Burke, who enlisted in the Canadian army at Calgary on November 2, 1917. He served in England and France and was discharged at Calgary on May 26, 1919. Burke was born in County Galway, Ireland, March 17, 1891. Address given by him at date of discharge was Spokane, Wash., or Richelieu hotel, Ottawa, Ontario.

Can anyone furnish information as to the present whereabouts of George C. Bussing; age thirty-four; height six feet; weight, 175 pounds; dark brown and gray mixed hair; formerly a major in the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Depot Brigade and instructor of the General Officers' Training school, Camp Lee, Virginia? "Acute Bronchitis, Hoarse and Stuffed Up, Could Hardly Breathe."

TOOK HYPO-COD AND STOPPED IT QUICKLY

"I was so hoarse and stuffed up with acute bronchitis that I couldn't take a full breath. I was so weak I could hardly walk from one room to another. It was one of those kind that makes you feel bad all over. When I would lie down at night I would cough so hard—regular spasms of coughing that kept me awake all night. Our doctor seemed unable to reach the spot, so after reading an advertisement in the Pittsburgh paper I sent down to the drug store for a couple bottles of this wonderful medicine called Earle's Hypo-Cod. By the time I had taken a half bottle my night cough stopped and I gained in strength fast. I began getting some sleep and by the time I had taken the two bottles of Hypo-Cod I was feeling like a new man and completely rid of my troubles. It is great stuff and I recommend Hypo-Cod every time for bronchial troubles," enthusiastically declared M. A. Crawford, a well-known insurance salesmen, 490 Kincaid St. E., E. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Hypo-Cod is a powerful, pure and wholesome combination of Cod Liver Oil extractives, with the nasty, fishy taste eliminated and then combined with Hypophosphites, Malt, Wild Cherry, Iron extractives, etc. (See formula and directions on each bottle.) Hypo-Cod works quicker than old-fashioned tonics. It has a delightful wine-like taste. All druggists have Hypo-Cod. Avoid cheap substitutes. —Advertisement.

Once Owned the Greatest Mine

Dapper Benny Hit Upon Six Claims That Now Produce $1,000,000 a Month.

LADY LUCK TURNS HER BACK

Benny, Saved by Philosophical Slant, Settled Down to Simple Life—Heart Stops Beating While Saying a Prayer.

Luck smiles on this man and then deserts him. What do you think of his philosophy?

Timmons, Ont.—The gang in the corner of the bar at Cobalt Camp was playing seven-up under a smelly oil lamp. Jack McMahon was mopping the bar and mentally calling it a bad night. Then the storm door opened and dapper Benny Hollinger, the gentleman adventurer, was pushed in by the north wind.

"'Lo everybody—luck to you all," he shouted, as he peeled his mackinaw off and tossed it on the three-legged chair.

"Drinks for the gentlemen, Jack," he ordered, stepping over to the Empire stove to thaw out.

Jack walked from behind the bar and poured three fingers for each card player. Fifteen drinks had to come from each quart, and he preferred to portion the liquid himself. But as for Benny, well, any one could see with half an eye that he was a gentleman, and therefore wouldn't take more than two fingers. So the bottle was placed beside a glass on the bar, and Jack said in his ingratiating manner, "Step up and pour for yourself, Benny."

Benny Pours.

Benny forsook the stove and poured.

"Lucky, Benny," the gang wished, as the red-eye was washed down.

Benny leaned over the bar and whispered: "Jack, there's a gold mine waiting for you and me—up Porcupine way."

"So?" Jack queried. He had heard similar tales before.

"Gold, waiting to be picked up," Benny continued. "And what is more, my luck's just right now."

Jack had heard those stories of the Porcupine field, 150 miles north and 500 miles from Toronto. "But nobody's found any real pay dirt that I know," he interjected. "Seems that it's all talk and no dust."

Benny talked on. He knew the land and he knew men who had found gold there. What was needed was $75 for a grub stake.

"We'll share and share alike," Benny urged. Finally Jack gave in. It was hard to hold out against Benny. He was such a pleasant, persuasive talker.

When Benny walked out with Jack's $75 the gang in the corner roared. Benny had been grub-staked before and had never found his mine. They joked McMahon so much that he became doubtful of the whole enterprise. But one couldn't take a grub-stake back. It wasn't done.

But Jack McMahon had a brother-in-law, in Labine. He told Jim of the Porcupine's richness. One-half of his half in Benny's stake could be had for $75—because he was in the family. They all had better get rich together. Jim paid his $75.

Benny Goes Northward.

The next day Benny mushed northward. Somewhere along the way he met Alex Gillies on the same mission. They joined forces as companions, not as partners. When they reached the Porcupine section—a wild bush land with bits of swamp—they found old Bill Davidson, veteran of British Columbia mining camps, panning gold.

Yes, there was some gold thereabouts. Of course the best land had all been staked out by Bill, but if the youngsters would go some miles "that way" they might find some quartz veins there.

They found the designated spot, almost lost in low-lying spruce swamps. They staked twelve claims. Then they tossed a coin to decide which should take the six east and which the six west claims. Benny got the western ones.

Benny found a prospector's forge, overgrown with dank grass, on his land. Someone had given up there, years before. By the side of those claims ran the portage trail, over which hundreds had passed. No one had found gold there, but you never knew your luck till you tried.

The dapper adventurer began digging, and he found quartz veined with what looked like gold. He filled a pack full, and started Cobalt way. Days later when he reached the edge of Cobalt he met Alphonse Pare, mining engineer, and nephew of the Timmons Brothers, former storekeepers, who had made a little money silver mining around Cobalt.

Pare stopped Benny and asked what luck. He had a hunch that Benny's luck had turned after seven years of failure. Benny showed his samples. Pare decided there was no reason for Benny to visit Cobalt—the thing to do was to turn around and go back and talk business.

Pare made quick work with his pack and the two headed northward. Snow began to fall before they reached the Porcupine lands, but a providential rain washed it away the day before they reached the claims. That was the fall of 1909.

Gold Sticks Out.

Yellow gold of unusual richness was sticking out all over the white quartz. The rains had washed it clear. The two stood in an infinite solitude beside the ground which in 1923 was to be hailed as the world's greatest gold mine, with an output of $1,000,000 worth of gold a month. Gillies was elsewhere, and the nearest neighbor was old Bill Davidson, laboriously panning gold beyond the hills.

Pare's trained eyes told him of the find. But Pare played the game squarely. He sat on a boulder, looked across at Benny nonchalantly packing his pipe, and asked him if he realized what he had found.

"I have found—some gold," Benny answered, gazing over the waste land. "You have found—much gold," Pare told him. Pare opened his wallet, took out $2,000 in currency and laid it on the boulder.

"That's for the right to look in," he said succinctly. Benny accepted the money and continued smoking. Pare took his geological hammer and spent the rest of the day tapping rocks. When they started back to Cobalt Pare offered, in behalf of the Timmons-McMartin-Dunlap syndicate, $330,000 for Benny's six claims if the samples assayed as high as he regarded them. Benny was satisfied.

To Give One to Pal.

But Benny made one stipulation. That sum would purchase only five of the claims, for he was going to give one of them to his old pal, Barney McEnaney. Barney had befriended him, and it was only fair that he should share his prosperity. McMahon had agreed to this when he grub-staked Benny. To this Pare made no objection. Thus five claims would still be worth $330,000.

When the assay was completed Pare called Benny in. The syndicate found it would require much money to develop those claims. Their original offer held good; they never broke their word. But would Benny like to join the syndicate? He would be given some cash, and 50,000 shares—a twelfth interest—valued at $3.50 a share.

Benny had dealt in shares before. He preferred all cash, but perhaps Jack McMahon might wish a say-so. Jack knew a nice piece of bar goods when he saw it, but little of gold mines. He decided that Benny should make the decision. Benny said, "all cash." Benny gave half of it to McMahon.

The syndicate eventually acquired Gillie's claims, but they couldn't budge Barney McEnaney. "Sure, it was Benny's gift, wasn't it? And its bad luck to give away a present, and that's what your asking me to do."

Begin the Mining.

Work began at the Hollinger mines. Benny went to Point Alexander, on the upper reaches of the Ottawa river, and took his parents from there to Pembroke, a pleasant little town that had grown from a trading post. Benny had always loved Nellie Hill; now he could afford to marry her. She had faithfully waited while he made his stake. They visited Toronto and other cities, but the two decided that Pembroke was a friendly place, so they returned there.

Word came that the Hollinger mine—as they called the Porcupine claims—had become a bonanza. So Benny hit the trail again. Maybe luck would strike the second time. The whole countryside was willing to stake Benny, but he needed nothing. A few miles from his great discovery he found claims that seemed to have similar formations. He bought them from the discoverers, and organized a company called the Hollinger Reserve. But it takes money to do quartz mining. Money went and gold didn't come, though across the way the original Hollinger was paying thousands of dollars a day.

Eventually the Hollinger Reserve was put up at sheriff's sale. Benny was flat broke again. But in the few years that had passed Barney McEnaney had been persuaded to sell his gift claim. He had received a price said to be $500,000. Barney was present at the sheriff's sale, and bid in the Hollinger Reserve—for one good turn deserved another, you know. One couldn't see a pal go down in disgrace. McEnaney died a few days later.

In Other Ventures.

Benny went into other mining ventures with his retrieved stake. But lightning luck seldom strikes twice, he found. Finally he turned back to Pembroke. He had a pretty little home there, a wife who was a mate, and three youngsters who worshiped him as king of everything. He was happy. To while away the long winter months he opened a bowling alley—dapper Benny's place, it was known throughout the country.

Word came that the Hollinger mine was being called "one of the great gold mines in the world."

"Don't you wish you had swung on?" he was asked. "I see the stock they offered you at $3.50 a share is selling for $60."

Benny smiled and shook his head. "I'm glad they are making it pay," he said. "They deserve it; they played square with me. And I'm happy here. Suppose we go deer hunting tomorrow?"

They did. That was in the fall of 1919.

A few days later Benny returned with a buck's antlers for the children. They saw him afar off, and ran to meet him. His wife came to the doorway, smiling. She had cooked just what he wanted—it was ready for him.

Benny, in the prime of health and feeling that the good God had been kind to give him so much happiness, went in and sat down at the table. He bowed his head in prayer. His heart stopped beating before he could reopen his eyes.

They have taken $50,000,000 out of the Hollinger mines. General Manager A. F. Brigham announced this week that $40,000,000 worth of ore had been charted out for the next three years. Experts say there is another $400,000,000 worth of gold waiting for them. A million dollars worth of ore is being taken out each month, and one-half of that is net profit. Some of the members of the original syndicate are receiving dividends at the rate of $6,000 a day. It is the world's greatest gold mine.—New York World.

"My Digestion Is Sound as a Dollar Since Taking Tanlac," Declares Buffalo Citizen.

"There is no doubt about it, Tanlac does all they claim it will do—and more," was the positive statement made recently by Richard H. Lawson, well-known engineer, of 1007 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I used Tanlac for a combination of troubles and it put me in splendid condition all the way round. First, I had a bad case of stomach trouble, was simply chock full of sourness and gas, had a general distressed feeling and a burning pain in my stomach that I couldn't get rid of. With my appetite wrecked and digestion gone, I became awfully weak, nervous and run down and could get scarcely any rest or sleep at all.

"Tanlac answered every demand made upon it in my case and today my digestion is sound as a dollar. I have an immense appetite, and with every ache and pain gone, I am sleeping fine and feeling strong and energetic as of old. Tanlac is 100 % good."

SEEMS TO BE TOO EXACTING

Character in Novel Would Appear to Demand a Whole Lot From His Fellow Men.

Thus in Forrest Reid's "Pender Among the Residents," the hero slides from adventure into criticism:

"My idea of poetry, you see, is of a mysterious thing—a kind of mixture of enchantment and music—something immensely primitive—a survival—old—old as Egyptian magic.

"That kind of poetry obviously can't be taught, and everything Trefusis does has been taught to him. I don't mean to say technique isn't of great importance, and, of course, it is quite proper that Trefusis should learn something about rhyme and meter; but rhyme and meter, however, dazzlingly handled, in themselves are no more than the walls of the house.

"I mean, unless it is a haunted house there is for me no poetry."

When the ghost walks for Pender, we suppose it has to be not with measured, but with metered, tread.—Chicago Journal.

American Plan in Mexico.

BUSINESS MEN LIKE OTHERS

Somewhat Prevalent Error Is in Considering Them to Be Something of a Race Apart.

Orators and literary folk of a certain widespread school seem to imagine that business men are all alike; that is, dishonest and prosperous from robbing the poor. The truth is many business men are themselves poor. Many of them fail because of unreliability, idleness, extravagance, lack of intelligence.

Business men are like any other class of men; some of them capable, reliable, industrious and successful, and some of them the reverse. Thousands of proletarians are in business, as thousands of our best men are working for wages and in training to occupy the big positions and enjoy the big incomes. In any group of business men, most of them do not amount to much, as is the case in any other group. The rich were robbed in Russia because they were aristocrats by birth. It cannot be done in the United States because here the well-to-do come up from the ranks, and are the best fighters as well as the best money makers.—From E. W. Howe's Monthly.

We may as well make up our minds that nothing is going to be done about a good many things.

HOW PHONE SYSTEM BEGAN

There Were Only Eight Subscribers and the Switchboard Was by Way of a Joke.

One switchboard, with a capacity of eight subscribers' stations—that was the beginning of telephone service, the first step toward the commercial development of the late Alexander Graham Bell's now famous invention. A crude switchboard had been used in Boston in 1877, but only for experimental and demonstration purposes. Its chief function was to convince the people of Boston and casual visitors of the utility of the telephone and of its future possibilities, says Telephone Press Service.

The ancestor of the modern commercial telephone switchboard was installed in New Haven, Conn., in 1878. From its eight lines has been evolved the network of wires and cables which covers the country from coast to coast.

From a single switchboard the number of central offices within a city has increased to over 100. From less than a dozen subscribers' stations, the total within the limits of a single city has mounted in several cases to over 100,000 and in one case to over 1,000,000. Under one roof as many as 20,000 lines are switched and central offices are now planned with a capacity of more than double that number.

OVER THE COUNTY

Now that Spring seems so near, why not boost for good roads from Penn's valley into Bellefonte?

Games arranged for the coming baseball season by the Centre Hall High school team include Spring Mills, Millheim, Lewistown, State College. Other schools may be added to this list.

McMullin Bros., Millheim millers, have ordered a 25-horse power Fairbanks-More engine to replace the one destroyed some time ago when it went to pieces with a bang and wrecked the engine room.

Ex-Sheriff Arthur B. Lee, of Spring Mills, is about again after an attack of grippe. Nearly everybody in Penn's valley has had grippe this winter. This is quite true of other sections in the county, as well.

The Lewisburg and Tyrone freight crew have been making schedule time more closely for several months than heretofore. This, it is said, is due to the fact that a Sunbury crew does shifting between there and Mifflinburg, which the regular freight crew formerly handled.

John H. Burkholder, one of Penn's valley's well-known young men who recently married, will start housekeeping on the farm near Centre Hill. M. H. Barger, who has been on the Burkholder farm, goes to the Spicher farm, west of Old Fort, vacated by R. L. Markle, who has leased the Colyer farm, east of Old Fort.

Rev. Shultz has resigned as pastor of the Rebersburg Lutheran charge to take effect March 28.

Last week one day, Charles Musser, of Millheim, ventured a trip to Spring Mills in the big oil truck which he drives. It stuck in a drift and one axle was broken in an attempt to get free.

The shipments of hay, grain and corn from the Centre Hall station were unusually large during February. Hay was sold at $15 per ton; corn, 70 cents per bushel, and wheat, $1.30 per bushel.

Charles Smith, of Spring Mills, recently killed a large wildcat in the Seven mountains near his home. It is said this animal might be one that has killed deer. At any rate, nobody seems sorry the wildcat is dead.

H. S. Winkleblech, of Fiedler, got his little finger in contact with a power saw while he was cutting wood for the stoves in his home. The finger was cut in two. Dr. S. C. Musser "planted" it fast again and is thought it will heal all right.

Squire A. S. Stover and son John, of Aaronsburg, while driving along the mountain road, near that town, were surprised to find a fox fast in a trap when they investigated to find why their team had taken a sudden notion to stop and refused to go farther. The fox was killed with a cant-hook and left in the trap for the owner to get later on, which he did.

MRS. PHILIP WIRTZ DEAD

Wife Soon Joined Husband in Leaving This World.

Mrs. Catherine Wirtz, of Houserville, whose husband, Philip Benner Wirtz, died on Sunday evening, Feb 29, soon joined him, as she passed from this life last Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, just as arrangements were ready for beginning funeral services over the remains of her husband. The funeral services were then postponed and on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock a double service for the aged couple was held at the homestead farm, now occupied by their son John. Side by side their bodies were laid to rest in Shiloh cemetery so that they seemed so attached to each other that even death could not keep them long apart.

The deceased was loved by her neighbors, was an active member of the Reformed church, which she and her husband joined many years ago, was a good wife, a devoted mother and home maker who is missed most in the home over which she presided so well for many years.

Her death came as no surprise for she was week from an illness which had been sapping her strength for some time, augmented by an attack of bronchitis. Then, the shock of death when her husband was called from her side, hastened the end.

While it was very sad, as all deaths are, there was something that betokened well—the joining of these two widely known and highly esteemed residents of that section of the county, where they had always resided, where for many years they had shared with each other the joys and sorrows of a long and helpful life.

Born at Pine Grove Mills, May 4, 1834, deceased was a daughter of Felix and Annie Dale, pioneer settlers in that section. She became the wife of Philip Benner Wirtz in November, 1862, so that they were companions on the farm near Houserville for more than sixty years.

They had two daughters, Lucy and Anna, who died in their teens, and one son, John, who is tilling the soil on the homestead farm. Besides their son, there survive three grandchildren—Ruth (Mrs. Claude Hoy), Pearl (Mrs. B. L. Chilcote) and Roy, all residing within a mile or so of the homestead farm, also five great grandchildren

BOY SCOUTS

May Make Future America a Better Place.

Boy Scout Movement is thirteen years old.

Not old enough yet to see any one of its members reach the Congressional desk, the Supreme Court desk or the Presidential chair. Its oldest members are now in college or starting in business and many are making worthy records—pressaging good results in future citizenship.

The seed of thoughtfulness for others, courtesy, cheerfulness and loyalty planted by scout training have already borne fruit the country over. Millions of good turns performed by the scouts are bright lights in the great painting of everyday life.

The scouts have won the nation's confidence and interest, and the nation look forward to the full blossoming of the scout training in the maturity of scout manhood. The nation hopes for prepared and noble citizenship from these boys who have pledged themselves to follow the great Scout Oath and Law.

The nation has a right to expect much, and has good basis on which to rest this expectation in the record so far achieved; hundreds of rescues, first-aid in emergencies, fire-fighting, wild life conservation, community good turns, finding lost people, etc.

UTILITY RATES LOWER

President of Railroad Corporation Makes Statement.

Utility rates at all times have been maintained at levels distinctly below the cost of living, says H. W. Brundige, president of the Railroad Commission of California.

"While living costs are given today by the United States bureau of labor statistics as being sixty-six and two-third per cent above the 1913 base," said Mr. Brundige, "electric prices are only 16 and 20 per cent above the pre-war levels."

"In the peak of 1920 living costs went to 219 from a base of 97 in 1913. In the same period the average increase in electric rates did not exceed 130 to 143 from a base of 100. In other words, the cost of living went up to 122 per cent and is still up sixty-six and two-third per cent, while electric power increases ranged from 30 to 43 per cent at the peak, and at present rates throughout the country are only 16 to 20 per cent above the normal base of 100."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

SANTA CLAUS ARRIVES

The children of a school were having a performance for parents and visitors during the Christmas holidays.

Oh, it was a very fine performance. There was plenty of music to begin with.

The singing was lovely and the recitations were very fine. Some of the very small children who recited could not pronounce very well, but that didn't make much difference. They were so cunning.

And when some of them forgot to make their bows some one from behind gave them little pushes so that they made their bows then.

A play was given, too, and that was very fine, and everyone looked so handsome in costume.

The very naughtiest little boy of all took the part of an angel, for when his face was still and he wasn't up to any prank he did have quite an angel-like face!

And at the end of the performance it was told about that Santa Claus was going to appear.

Oh, what excitement there was.

"Santa Claus is coming," every one said. "Santa Claus is coming."

And then they waited and they heard the wind outside. Yes, a wind was blowing up and it was beginning to snow hard.

They did hope Santa Claus would not lose his way in the storm.

But then they were comforted in thinking that no one had ever heard of Santa Claus losing his way before, and he had surely taken a good many trips and had traveled a great deal.

And then the wind blew more and more, and they did not know whether they heard sounds of an approaching sleigh or whether the noise was all made by the wind.

Just as they were almost giving up hope of his coming some one shouted: "I hear sleigh bells!" And there were many bells—just as though all the reindeer had come.

Everyone listened. Everyone was very quiet. Not a sound was made.

And yes, yes, there was no mistake about it. The bells that could be heard were the bells of the reindeer—of many reindeer.

Oh, how excited everyone was.

The sound of the bells came nearer and nearer and nearer. The sleigh could not be far away now.

Then some one called out and said: "Let's turn out the lights so we can see him coming up the steps of the building."

So the lights were turned out and the great room was in darkness.

And then they heard a stamping and a pounding, and down at the foot of the steps stood Santa Claus.

He was dressed in an enormous red coat trimmed with white and on his head he wore a long red stocking cap.

His face was so red and ruddy and his mustache and beard so white.

He was brushing off the snow from his great boots, and as he did so he called out to his reindeer down the street where he had left them:

"Good-by for a little while, my beauties. I'll meet you again at the place we arranged.

"Stay there, my beauties, and Santa Claus will be back."

Oh, such a shout as there was when Santa Claus came up and into the room. Everyone ran toward him and some put their arms around him and others took hold of his hands and even of each finger.

"Well, this is a joy," said Santa Claus, "to be able to get a little outing like this with a visit to all my people.

"And now I'll empty my pack, for I brought every child a present."

There, sure enough, was a box of candy for every child and a little toy.

And then Santa went off into the snowy night once more, carried back home by his faithful, marvelous reindeer.

Obeying Orders.

Going into his stable one day, a country farmer found his little son with a notebook and pencil in his hand, sitting astride one of the horses.

"Why, Eddie," he exclaimed, "what in the world are you doing?"

"Writing a composition," replied little Eddie.

"Well, why don't you write it in the library?"

"Because," answered Eddie, "the teacher told us to write a composition on a horse."

CONCLUSION OF COURT

Tom Zavada, Alleged Bootlegger, Given Sentence.

In the last session of court several cases were disposed of by Judge Quigley.

Tom Zavada, for manufacturing and selling liquor, on a charge preferred by B. F. Gill, a deputy sheriff, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and serve three months in jail. In this case the still used in the manufacture of the liquor was produced in court.

H. J. Goss and E. E. Demi, trading as Demi & Goss, vs Frank Balistrere and Jessie Balistrere. Being an appeal. The defendant on last Thursday morning filed a supplemental affidavit of defense and the case was continued at the cost of the defendants for the term.

George B. Hall vs Boggs Twp. Poor District. Being an appeal. From the testimony the plaintiff had for several years been in charge of and looking after the Boggs Twp. Poor Farm, under contract, and admitted that he was paid according to the contract excepting that the contract provided that in the case of paupers in the home who were unable to wait upon or care for themselves that he was to receive extra pay, but from the testimony had made no demand for any extra pay, or entered into any contract for any extra pay, nor notified the authorities that he expected extra pay until he was notified to vacate the premises, and subsequently brought this suit. At the conclusion of the testimony on the part of both the plaintiff and the defendant on motion of the defendant for binding instructions the court directed a verdict in favor of the defendants.

DEATH BREAKS UP HOME

Young Mother and Child Died at Hublersburg.

Mrs. Curtis McClure died at her home in Hublersburg on last Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from pneumonia and the same night at 10 o'clock her six-months-old daughter, Mildred Irene, died from measles.

The young mother was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dory Gunsallus, well-known residents of Hublersburg. She was born at Mackeyville and was 21 years old. Besides her husband and parents she is survived by one son, Arthur, and five sisters: Edna, Anna, Ethel, Katherine and Bertha, all at home. Double funeral services were held on Saturday morning. Burial was made at Hublersburg.

Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan Combines Sedan Convenience With Coupe Sociability

Newest Creation, Introduced First At The New York Automobile Show, Completes Willys-Knight 1923 Motor Car Styles, Which Eclipse All Previous Achievements.

COACH WORK IS TRIUMPH OF ENGINEERING SKILL

Nickel Trimings Add Beauty to General Refinement of Body Lines. These and the Perfectly Balanced Chassis, Live up in Every Way to the Marvelously Quiet, Efficient Sleeve-Valve Knight Motor Under its Hood--the Motor That Improves With Use.

Matching in every beautiful line and mark of luxurious comfort, the wonderfully quiet, efficient motor under the hood, the Willys-Knight cars displayed at this week's automobile show, present new motor car styles which eclipse in originality and refinement of design all previous Willys-Knight achievements.

The new Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan, introduced this week for the first time, completes the Willys-Knight line—a car of exceptional grace and beauty, a combination of fine workmanship and design, and economy of operation.

Also exhibited is the seven-passenger sedan—seven-passenger in comfort and convenience, but minus the usual seven-passenger heaviness and expense; the five-passenger sedan; the four-passenger coupe; the seven-passenger touring car; the five passenger touring car; and the three-passenger roadster.

THE COUPE-SEDAN.

The Coupe-Sedan—an innovation—combines the chummy sociability of the Coupe with the convenience of the Sedan, an entirely original body creation of steel for the most discriminating motorist.

Both front and rear seats are full size, richly upholstered in mouse-colored velour and deeply cushioned with springs and hair.

Doors both front and rear elimihate the inconvenience of folding of emergency seats and provides equal comforts for hosts and guests in a big, roomy body that holds five passengers with comfort, giving the comfort of the Sedan with the friendliness and coziness of the Coupe. Front windows lower entirely out of sight.

The long cowl and hood, adorned with a nickle plated radiator shell and nickle plated head lamps of barrel design and nickle plated bullet cowl lamps, gives an appearance of a car that is light and fleet, yet adequate for a family. It is painted a Willys-Knight blue on cowl, hood and body.

Only the highest grade water-proof top material is used, in keeping with the distinctiveness of the rest of the car. Aluminum kick-pads, added to the running board are another little touch of refinement. Interior instrument fittings and appointments add to the general feeling of comfort and luxury at moderate cost. A large trunk of adequate proportions is provided in the rear.

TRIUMPHS OF ENGINEERING SKILL.

The Coupe and Sedans, both five and seven-passenger, show to good anvantage in the Willys-Knight design—unusually underslung rear springs of chrome vanadium steel, making possible low centre of gravity, with the consequent ease of riding and freedom from side sway and skidding on curves.

The Willys Knight cars impress one, upon study, as triumphs of engineering skill. From whatever viewpoint they are studied, they live up to the marvelous motor under their hood.

No car in America is easier to steer. Only one car in America, and it costs three times as much as the Willys-Knight, can boast of the same front axle construction. The fatigue of driving is eliminated by this one stroke of genius. Women find the Willys-Knight an unusually easy car to handle.

The rear axle, always the second most important unit of any automobile is a decided feature of the Willys-Knight because of its rugged construction. The housing is of the pressed steel welded type and is designed to withstand many times the maximum load. The axle shafts on the Willys-Knight do not carry any of the car weight—the load is all carried on the heavy tubing, the axle shafts performing only the function of propelling the car.

Nothing has been overlooked for the comfort and convenience of the passengers. One sinks into luxurious cushions as in an easy chair. In the closed cars, windows are raised and lowered with ease with a crank type regulator.

The interior color schemes in the closed car are rich and harmonious, while the finish of the interior metal work is practical and attractive.

REFINEMENTS ADD TO BEAUTY

Externally there have been several refinements perfected that will add thousands of new friends to those who have had long service with the car whose motor—"improves with use."

The nickle-plated barrel cowl lights, now standard equipment on all Willys-Knight models, add a distinctive appeal, as does the nickle-plated radiator shell, surmounted by an attractive nickle-plated radiator cap with decorative design.

The color of the finish of the hood and cowl has been changed to the distinctive Willys-Knight blue, that has so appealed to discriminating motorists and is still used on the body of the car.

In the touring cars and roadster, bright, long-grain leather of the finest grade is now standard equipment, replacing the dull pebble-grained leather, adding instant appreciation, better appearance and more durability.

An improved design in the face of the top, which is of high-grade water-proof material whip-cord lined, lends beauty to the general attractiveness of the car's lines.

In the open cars, easily operated side curtains add to the joy of motoring. Fastened from the inside, they open with the doors.

The glass in the rear curtain is set in a nickle-plated frame. Aluminum kick-pads have been added to the running boards.

A sturdier, stronger tire holder, with a Willys-Knight seal in its centre and a larger gasoline tank are additions to the back of the car that lend to the all-around symmetry.

INTERIOR APPOINTMENTS

A rich blue-grey broadclo h upholstery is used in the Sedan and Coupe models, with a European tilt to the seats that adds comfort, especially on long trips. The doors are extra wide. The finer quality of the instruments and fittings will appeal to the most discriminating.

The ventilating windshields in all models afford a protection from every condition of weather, while giving a clear, unobstructed view ahead. A windshield wiper is standard equipment.

The steering tube has been lengthened to the floor on all models. A front cross tube has been added to the chassis, lending additional rigidity to the sturdy frame.

THE WILLYS-KNIGHT MOTOR.

Of course, the vital factor of any car is the motor under the hood and in this case all questions are quickly settled, as it is the famous sleeve-valve Willys-Knight—"the motor that wears in—not out."

Two simple metal sleeves that glide silently up and down between the cylinder wall and the piston, one working within the other, regulate the intake and exhaust of gas and increase flexibility and economy.

There are but 92 parts in the valve mechanism of the Knight motor. Compare this with the 362 parts in the valve mechanism of the best known poppet-valve car. Simplicity and economy of operation is apparent.

Carbon, the foe of other motors, actually increases compression in the Willys-Knight. Its simplicity and freedom from repair have given it an international reputation for long life. There is no record of a Willys-Knight motor that has worn out. Adv

Here's New Way to Make Living

Men Who Sell Their Blood for Transfusion Have Close Knit Union.

MUST KEEP AT TOP OF FORM

Most of Them Are Working Men, and Clean Living Is a First Essential —Careful Tests Are Made— Pay Is Small.

Here's the 1,001st way to make a living. How would you like to follow this profession?

New York.—A man recently brought into night court for intoxication won the sympathy of the court by stating that he had recently given a quart of his blood by transfusion and in his weakened state had drunk more than he could stand. Later he amplified his story, saying that he had submitted to 206 blood transfusions in three years. These statements drew a protest from the small number of men who make a business of giving their blood to others and who hold themselves at the call of physicians and hospitals.

The Order of Blood Donors is jealous of its reputation and branded as false the culprit whose case found its way into court. In the first place, its members said, no blood donor would be haled to court for intoxication because one of the first requirements for the "profession" is clean living. According to them, nothing would throw a donor into the discard quicker than even a suspicion of alcoholic taint in his blood. And Thomas Gane of 502 East Fifty-first street, who lays claim to the record for transfusions, said that it would be a physical impossibility for one to undergo transfusion 206 times in three years. The best Kane has been able to do is 49 transfusions since 1914.

Profession Is New.

The profession of blood donor is comparatively new. A few years ago when transfusion was necessary some friend or relative had to volunteer or an advertisement was put in the newspapers asking for a donor. There was never any trouble in finding persons ready to lose some of their blood for pay, but it was sometimes difficult to select an applicant whose blood would stand the test. When a physician or hospital found a man whose blood did stand the test they kept in touch with him, and it was in this way that the first waiting list was made up. According to Kane there are about 400 men who make a practice of answering calls and who "go out" on cases whenever needed.

Each time the donor is called he gives from a pint to a quart of blood, so there must be long intervals between aid calls. The pay is surprisingly small.

Being accepted as a donor was not such an easy matter, he said. Before the blood is taken from a donor it has to pass the Wasserman test to see if it is free from the taint of disease. The donor then has to submit to a blood count; that is, a test to see whether his blood is up to a standard of richness. Then the applicant must be in the same group with the patient. This means that the physician must select blood which will unite readily and uniformly with that of the recipient.

"Stories of men who have received fabulous sums for a pint or more of their blood are false and are usually inspired by boasting," said Kane. "I have heard such stories and I know from actual experience that they are untrue. In the first place, under modern methods, the donor in most cases does not come into personal contact with the recipient of his blood and the physician is the one who looks after the financial end of such transactions. That eliminates acquaintance and a sense of gratitude on the part of the patient."

Poor Way to Make a Living.

The establishment of a permanent market for human blood does not mean that the donor can make a living of it. He could not stand the strain of continual loss, even if the demand for his services was constant and there is not enough money in it. So the profesional donors follow other lines of permanent employment and answer calls in order to increase their incomes. The present list of available donors includes men of many occupations, usually those who do manual labor, for the donor must keep his blood in the pink of condition.

Prior to 1919 the standard price for transfusion was $25. The cost of this operation has gone up with other costs. The donor now gets $35 to $50 a case. Sometimes, because of the condition of the patient, it is necessary to keep a donor on hand for several days before an operation is expedient. When this is the case, Kane said, the donor receives his keep and $5 for each day of waiting.

NEWSBOY 46 YEARS

Edward P. Snyder of Baltimore recently celebrated his forty-sixth year as a newsboy on the same stand. Snyder started to sell papers when he was twelve years old, and established himself at the corner of Green and Franklin streets. He's still there and doing a bigger business every year. He's never had any other job, but has made a success of selling newspapers.

Cost of Bigotry.

The bill for burning three eminent martyrs in England is preserved in the British museum. Including cost of faggots, furze, a post, two chains, two tables and laborers, it totals $6.66.

AS A MAN SOWETH

By ADA BORDEN STEVENS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"DO TAKE up the baby, Clay! I know you hate to, but he cries so I can't go on with the cooking. Supper will be ready in a minute." Katherine turned an anxious, flushed face from the toast she was buttering. It was just the kind Clayton Alden liked best.

All the boys envied Clayton when he married Kay. She had been a bright girl in college, and a favorite at all the dances. Clayton went off triumphantly with the rare prize. For five successive years he had come back nightly to her to rest after a struggling day in town; years in which he took her sacrifices for his business interests as a matter of course. She would have helped him with his problems if he had allowed.

She loved her home and his protection. She delighted in making the best of what he had, and supplementing it with hand craft. She gloried in the two little Aldens that had come to them. Baby Kenwood was the one directly on her mind at present. Junior was happy with a tiny hammer and an old box in the corner of the kitchen.

Clayton admitted the fascination of his little family, but, frankly, he considered that a woman's work was the care of her own house and children. Whatever Puritan outcropping this was, it grew with exercise. The children were too young to interest him much; at this age they seemed alien. Katherine managed beautifully. He left them to her, and expected her to leave his cares to him. Long preoccupied silences entered his routine. Out of them he would come volubly to hustle them all into the motor he felt it necessary to own, and go on some grand picnic. Katherine tired, uneasy, had ceased asking, but secretly planned some new economy to pay for these indulgences.

Reluctantly, he picked his young son up and held him awkwardly. Kay certainly tended to spoil the kids as they grew older! However, that was her affair, only he did not wish to be too frequently a victim. If her days were monotonous, he did not realize it, feeling gratefully the restfulness of home. Once a week a kindly neighbor stayed with the children, releasing her to companion him socially. He did not know the extra work this meant—the planning for time and clothes. He came to take these days for granted, too.

Supper over, Kay went to put the babies to bed, a heavy child on each arm. Going to look for her after an unusual silence, Clay found her lying white, unconscious, across the bed.

"Kay, dear! Katherine! What on earth's the matter? Come, get undressed, and into bed." He felt injured that she paid no attention to him. She did not rouse. Alarmed at last, he telephoned for Doctor Ross.

An hour passed before she opened her eyes, took the dose and fell off to sleep. Clay left her grudgingly as the doctor beckoned him. Once in the sitting room the doctor's benign look dropped from him. He turned sternly to the young man.

"Don't you know that you are killing your wife?" he cried. "A woman's work, hey? Well, so it is; but the children are yours, aren't they? You can't afford to hire much help, can you? Mrs. Alden never complains, does she? No, I know blamed well she doesn't. Now she came to me a week ago and I told her to be careful. Have you helped her to be careful? Have you? She's in for a good long rest at last."

Clayton felt crushed. To lose Katherine—. But Doctor Ross went on, "Oh, she'll get well—if you take care of her. Woman's work! Man's work! Bah! Get together, Alden. Katherine's got a better head than you; talk your business over with her; it will be the better for it. She needs your problems, you need hers. If you don't work together, in ten years you'll wake up to find you are stranded on different shores." The physician turned calmly, "Send her to her mother tomorrow."

Clayton was no fool, but his head swam with new ideas, driven in by no soft, gloved hand such as Kay had tried to use. "I say, doctor," Clayton's mind ran ahead to the anxious nights that would be his if he hadn't the daily sight of Kay's sweet face and reassuring smile; the silent house without the little ones—"couldn't her mother come here?"

The doctor wheeled to look at him. Clay stammered an answer to the unspoken question:

"I—could—help with the children—nights—"

The benign smile came back as Doctor Ross replied heartily. "By all means. I'll see her in the morning."

The kindly neighbor sat with the sleeping Katherine while Clayton speeded into the country, where Kay's mother innocently felt so remote from the tiny apartment in town. When Katherine woke again it was to feel the familiar, competent presence of the woman who had taught her homecraft. She put out her hand gratefully, but with the other hand she drew Clayton's anxious face to hers, for she was too wise not to know by what a soul-searching process this miracle had been performed.

Different Reasons.

At several weddings recently it has been noticed that thinly clad brides have shivered with cold. It is not the cold, however, that makes the bridegroom shiver.—London Opinion.

Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if Othine fails.

War Heroes Are Dropping Out

Official Charts Show Their Places as America's Defenders Are Being Refilled.

YOUNGER MEN FILL RANKS

A Decade After Their Discharge Only 423,000 of the 3,000,000 Men of Pershing's Army Will Be Available for Service.

Washington.—Men who shared with Pershing the great adventure in France are passing off the stage as America's defenders. Official charts show that their place already is being taken by the younger brothers of the A. E. F. Tomorrow it will be their sons who stand ready to fight for the flag.

The charts show that of more than 3,000,000 men discharged from the wartime army up to January 1, 1920, there will be available in 1925 for Class 1 service—and that means battle service, face to face with the foe—little more than 600,000 veterans.

Millions trooped to the colors in the World war, but even the eighteen-year-old youngsters among them will be men weighted with cares and responsibilities by 1945.

They will have married or will have acquired other dependents; they will be broken with years; many will have died; some will be working at tasks as essential as soldiering, and none will be left to man the trenches. The bright day of their youth and fighting powers will be but an honored heritage for their sons.

"Of the 3,128,670 officers and men examined for discharge to December 1, 1919," says the colorless record of the War department, "2,931,560 were discharged without disability. It is assumed that by 1925, or approximately five years after discharge, they will have attained the status (having acquired dependents, engaged in essential occupations, incurred disabilities, etc.) of average citizens, and would be available (held for service), in the same proportion as obtained with those registered under the last draft."

Application of the census bureau death rate, coupled with the knowledge gained of average conditions surrounding the age groups involved by the calling up for examination under the draft act of millions of citizens, gives a clear vision of what time is doing to the great body of trained soldiers poured back into the country after the armistice.

Basis of Calculations.

That is the basis of the War department calculations as to probable exemptions, and the basis, too, to the pressure for filling up the organized reserves with new blood each year into an unfailing reservoir of fighting strength, at least partially ready to answer the call to arms.

By age groups the veterans above thirty-six years in 1918, will have ceased to exist from a military viewpoint in 1925, and of more than 135,000 in the thirty-six-year class some 20,000 might still be ready for a call. By 1930, all those above thirty-three years in 1918 will be gone, and by 1935, all who were above twenty-eight years in 1918, will have vanished from the charts.

By 1940, the youngsters who were twenty-three years old when 1918 brought them to the colors, will show a mere 22,000 still ready for active service, and by 1945, the eighteen-year-old youths of those days of war could muster probably only 5,810 veterans of St. Mihiel and the Argonne to follow the flag again.

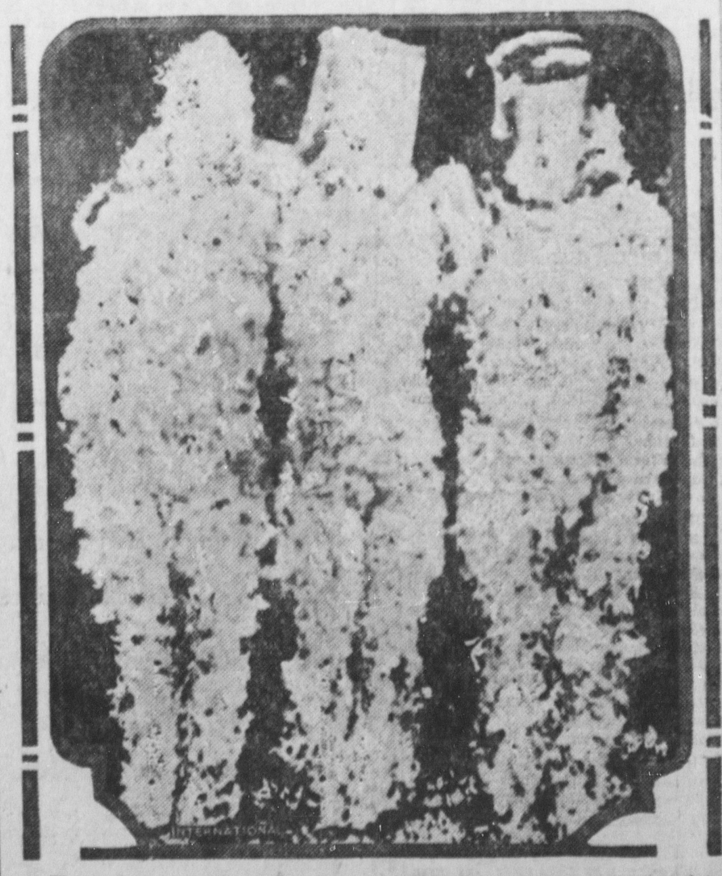
Pastor Uses Calliope to Boost Church.

New York.—A circus steam calliope trundled through the crowded streets of New York city tooting the tune of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Rev. Christian Freisner sent it out to attract worshipers to the Chelsea Methodist Episcopal church for Sunday services.

Youths Must Stay Home at Night for Two Years

Judge Vanderwerp of Muskegon, Mich., in paroling Frank Kettle and Roy McClure, each less than twenty years old, who were convicted of the charge of breaking and entering a building, made it a provision that they must stay at home nights for two years.

How Iowans Treat Hen Thieves



These three men were seized by a committee of vigilantes and treated to coats of tar and feathers. The flashlight photograph was secured by City Marshall John L. Starr, who arrived on the scene too late to save the three men whom the vigilantes had charged with chicken stealing. The incident occurred at Sanborn, Iowa. Buckets in which the tar had been prepared were used to hide the faces of two of the victims. The third didn't need any covering other than the tar and feathers.

NERVOUS WOMAN COMPLETE WRECK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. HERRICK, 234 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

Chauffeurs Give Horses "Lift."

A friend in need spirit prevails among the truckmen and chauffeurs on Chambers street and other important crosstown streets during and after a snowstorm. The horses, after many escapes from falling, became frightened and are unable to pull their loads.

The spirit of co-operation then comes to the front and ends threatened traffic jams. Chauffeurs of big automobile trucks drive up behind the stalled truck and push it along ahead until the horses regain their footing.—New York Sun.

Garrulous as Ever.

It may be, as that English writer says, that women don't talk love as much as they used to, but we all know that if he reversed the two words he'd be away off.

Amanuensis.

"I wish an amanuensis."
"A man amanuensis?"
"No, a woman amanuensis."

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weaknesses of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the ills peculiar to women.

GIANT SAILOR RUNS AMUCK ON VESSEL

Usurps Command at Sea, Is Shot by Skipper, Neglects His Wounds and Dies.

St. John's, N. F.—The giant body of Krishan Jacob Lorensen, sailor man, who by right of might became a ship's master for a day, is a-rolling on the floor of the angry deep. The story of his passing just a month ago, was told in detail for the first time recently.

Lorensen's bunk was the most comfortable in the forecastle of the Danish schooner Centaurus. He was a good sailor and a good fighter. He took what he wanted and tolerated back talk from no man. He wasn't scared of the "Old Man," Krishan Rasmussen, neither did the size of the first mate, Trik Knudsen, bother him.

The Centaurus drove out of Spencer's cove, Newfoundland, bound for Intending to Scare Lorensen.

Harbor Buffet, on December 15. Two days out the captain and the first mate got into a heated argument about the schooner's position. They talked loudly. Entered Lorensen, scowling, hands on hips.

He told the skipper and the mate that neither of them knew where the vessel was. He laughed when ordered on deck. He tossed the "Old Man" and Erik clear across the cabin when they tried to put him out. He then locked them in and took charge of the schooner.

Seven times did the captain and the mate try to get on deck. Seven times they were kicked down the companion-way. Storms came. The Centaurus rolled and pitched. Lorensen, at the wheel, grinned and turned her nose to the sea.

The skipper, frightened for his vessel's safety, got his gun, crawled to the cabin door and fired, intending to scare Lorensen. The bullet struck the sailor in the arm. He smiled, refusing to go below to have the wound dressed. Six hours later, while singing a song of the sea, he dropped to the deck, weak from loss of blood, and died.

Captain Rasmussen and his first mate, upon the arrival of the schooner at Harbor Buffet, were held for examination. They were discharged from custody by order of the Justice department, which declared it had no jurisdiction.

GIRL IS ARMLESS BUT ACTIVE

Crippled Since Birth She Goes to the University of California and Makes Good Record.

Berkeley, Cal.— "Every human being owes the world a smile," says Martha Hale, freshman in the University of California. Miss Hale has been armless from birth.

Her course in college is planned to prepare her to restore the smile to the faces of crippled men and women. For Martha Hale is preparing for social service as a reconstruction worker in industry or for the state.

Miss Hale, who is a slender wisp of a girl, does everything with her feet. She dresses and undresses, writes, sews, paints and cooks. She does most of the things a girl with arms does in the course of a busy day.

"One doesn't miss what one never has had," she says. Her dark brown eyes sparkle with mirth, and a smile always lurks close to the corners of a Cupid's bow mouth.

Killed in Church as Hymn Is Being Sung

Point Pleasant, W. V.—As the congregation of a little church, five miles from here, rose to sing a hymn, the people were startled at a pistol shot, and Charles Frost fell dead in his seat. Paul Clonch was arrested and brought to the county jail here, charged with the shooting. He made no statement to the authorities, but persons at the church said the men had quarreled over a young woman of the congregation.
